What is a Letter of Recommendation for National Honor Society?

A letter of recommendation for National Honor Society is a formal written statement, typically from a teacher, counselor, coach, or mentor, that attests to a student's qualifications for membership. The National Honor Society (NHS) is an esteemed organization that recognizes students who demonstrate excellence in scholarship, leadership, service, and character. The recommendation letter provides qualitative evidence supporting a student's application, offering insights into their personal attributes and contributions that might not be apparent from academic transcripts or activity lists alone. It acts as a testament from an external observer who has had direct experience with the student's performance and demeanor.

The Importance of a Strong Recommendation

The significance of a strong letter of recommendation for National Honor Society cannot be overstated. While academic achievement (scholarship) is a foundational requirement, NHS selection committees look for well-rounded individuals. A compelling recommendation letter bridges the gap between quantifiable achievements and the intangible qualities that define a true NHS member. It offers concrete examples of leadership in action, dedication to community service, and an unwavering positive character. A weakly written or generic recommendation can do little to distinguish a candidate, whereas a detailed, enthusiastic, and specific letter can significantly bolster an application, presenting the student in the best possible light and influencing the selection committee's decision.

Who Should Write Your National Honor Society Recommendation?

Selecting the right recommender is paramount for a successful National Honor Society application. The individual chosen should have a deep and current understanding of the student's capabilities and character. Ideally, they should be someone who has observed the student in a capacity relevant to the NHS criteria – scholarship, leadership, service, and character.

Teachers as Recommenders

Teachers are often the most sought-after recommenders. They can speak directly to a student's academic performance, work ethic, classroom participation, and intellectual curiosity. A teacher who has had the student in multiple classes or for an extended period can provide more nuanced insights. They can often provide specific examples of problem-solving skills, collaboration, and critical thinking demonstrated in their subject area.

Counselors and Administrators

School counselors and administrators can offer a broader perspective on a student's overall school performance, involvement, and character development. They often have a view of a student's interactions with peers and faculty across different contexts. Their recommendation can highlight a student's growth, their ability to navigate school challenges, and their contributions to the school community beyond the classroom.

Coaches and Extracurricular Advisors

For students who demonstrate significant leadership and commitment in extracurricular activities, coaches and advisors are excellent choices. They can attest to a student's teamwork, dedication, perseverance, sportsmanship, and leadership potential. These individuals often witness a student's ability to motivate others, handle pressure, and embody the values of their team or club, which directly aligns with NHS expectations.

Mentors and Community Leaders

If a student is actively involved in community service or has a strong mentor relationship outside of school, a recommendation from that individual can be incredibly impactful. This person can speak to the student's commitment to service, their empathy, their ability to connect with diverse groups, and their personal growth through volunteer work or mentorship. It showcases engagement beyond the typical school environment.

Key Components of an Effective Recommendation Letter

A truly effective letter of recommendation for National Honor Society goes beyond mere platitudes. It is a carefully constructed document that provides specific, verifiable evidence of the student's suitability for membership. The best letters are tailored to the individual and clearly articulate how the student embodies the core NHS pillars.

Introduction and Relationship Context

The letter should begin by clearly stating the recommender's name, title, and their relationship with the student, including how long and in what capacity they have known the applicant. This establishes credibility and provides context for the subsequent observations.

Demonstrated Scholarship

While grades are on the transcript, the recommender can elaborate on the student's intellectual curiosity, their approach to learning, their ability to grasp complex concepts, and their dedication to academic excellence. Specific examples of outstanding performance on challenging assignments or projects are highly valuable.

Evidence of Leadership

This section should highlight instances where the student has taken initiative, influenced others positively, or managed responsibilities effectively. This could be through leading a project, captaining a team, organizing an event, or mentoring younger students. Concrete examples of leadership actions are far more impactful than general statements.

Commitment to Service

The letter should provide specific examples of the student's volunteer work and community involvement. It should speak to their dedication, empathy, and the impact they have made. Quantifiable details, such as hours of service or specific contributions to a cause, can strengthen this section.

Exemplary Character

This is where the recommender can speak to the student's integrity, honesty, maturity, respectfulness, and positive attitude. Anecdotes illustrating these traits, such as how the student handled a difficult situation, showed kindness to others, or demonstrated resilience, are crucial. The recommender should describe the student as a person of good moral fiber.

Overall Endorsement and Recommendation

The letter should conclude with a strong, unequivocal endorsement of the student for National Honor Society membership. The recommender should clearly state their belief in the student's fitness for the honor and their potential to contribute positively to the organization.

Gathering Information for Your Recommender

To ensure your recommender can write a powerful and specific letter, it is essential to provide them with the necessary information. This proactive step helps them recall relevant details and tailor their letter effectively.

Provide a Resume or Activity List

Share a detailed list of your academic achievements, extracurricular activities, volunteer experiences, and any leadership roles you have held. This serves as a comprehensive reminder of your accomplishments.

Share Your NHS Application Essay or Personal Statement

If you have written an essay or personal statement for your NHS application, providing it to your recommender allows them to align their letter with your narrative and highlight aspects of your personality and goals that you wish to emphasize.

Remind Them of Specific Interactions or Projects

Gently remind your recommender of specific projects, assignments, or interactions you had with them that highlight the qualities you want them to address. For instance, "I really enjoyed working on the group project in your class where I helped organize our team's presentation," or "I appreciated your guidance when I was struggling with that particular math concept."

Outline Key Qualities You Want Highlighted

You can politely suggest specific qualities or experiences you hope they might mention, without being demanding. For example, "I'm hoping to emphasize my leadership role in the debate club, if that's something you feel comfortable discussing."

Provide the NHS Criteria

Ensure your recommender understands the four pillars of the National Honor Society: Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Character. Knowing these criteria will help them focus their examples and commentary.

Supply Necessary Forms and Deadlines

Always provide clear instructions on how and when the letter needs to be submitted, along with any required forms or online portals. Double-check all deadlines and submission details.

Writing a Compelling Recommendation Letter

Crafting a compelling letter of recommendation for National Honor Society requires more than just listing a student's achievements. It involves painting a vivid picture of their character and potential through descriptive language and specific anecdotes. The recommender's voice should be enthusiastic and genuine.

Be Specific with Examples

Instead of stating "John is a good leader," write "John demonstrated exceptional leadership skills when he took the initiative to organize and lead our class project on environmental sustainability, motivating his peers and ensuring all tasks were completed effectively."

Use Strong Action Verbs and Descriptive Adjectives

Employ words that convey impact and personality. For scholarship, consider "inquisitive," "diligent," "analytical." For leadership, use "innovative," "assertive," "collaborative." For character, "principled," "empathetic," "resilient."

Quantify Achievements When Possible

If you can quantify a student's contributions, do so. For service, stating "volunteered over 100 hours at the local animal shelter" is more impactful than "participated in community service."

Address the NHS Pillars Directly or Indirectly

While not every letter needs a dedicated paragraph for each pillar, the content should clearly touch upon scholarship, leadership, service, and character. Weave these themes throughout the narrative.

Maintain a Positive and Enthusiastic Tone

A recommender's genuine enthusiasm for the student can be infectious. A positive tone conveys confidence in the student's abilities and character. Avoid lukewarm language or hedging.

Keep it Concise and Focused

While detail is important, the letter should be concise and to the point, typically no more than one page. Focus on the most impactful examples that best represent the student for NHS membership.

Tips for Students Requesting a Letter

As a student applying for National Honor Society, the process of requesting a letter of recommendation is an important step that requires thoughtfulness and respect for your potential recommenders. Approaching this task strategically can ensure you receive the strongest possible endorsement.

- Request letters well in advance of the deadline, ideally at least two to three weeks.
- Choose recommenders who know you well and can speak specifically about your strengths.
- When asking, do so in person or via a polite email, explaining your intention and why you are asking them.
- Provide a clear list of deadlines and submission instructions.
- Offer to provide supporting documents like your resume, activity list, and personal essay.
- Waive your right to view the letter; this often signals to the committee that you trust your recommender.
- Follow up with a polite thank-you note or email after the letter has been submitted.

What to Avoid in a Recommendation Letter

Certain elements can detract from the effectiveness of a letter of recommendation for National Honor Society, potentially weakening the student's application. Recommenders should be mindful of these pitfalls to ensure their letter is as impactful as possible.

Generic or Vague Statements

Phrases like "She's a good student" or "He's a nice person" lack substance and do not provide concrete evidence of the qualities required for NHS. The letter needs specific examples.

Overly Casual Language or Tone

While personality is good, the letter should maintain a professional and respectful tone, appropriate for a formal application to an academic honor society.

Negative or Backhanded Compliments

Any hint of negativity, even disguised as a compliment, can be detrimental. For example, "He did well for someone who struggles with math."

Focusing Only on One Aspect

A letter that only discusses academics without touching upon leadership, service, or character will not fully represent the student's qualifications for NHS.

Irrelevant Information

The letter should stay focused on the student's suitability for NHS. Personal anecdotes about the recommender or unrelated school matters should be omitted.

Exaggeration or Unverifiable Claims

While enthusiasm is good, making claims that are clearly exaggerated or cannot be supported by evidence can undermine the recommender's credibility.

The Submission Process

Understanding the submission process for letters of recommendation is critical for both students and their recommenders. This ensures that all necessary materials are delivered correctly and on time, facilitating a smooth application journey for the student seeking National Honor Society induction. The specific methods can vary slightly between schools and NHS chapters, so it's important to be clear on the required procedure.

Online Submission Portals

Many schools and NHS chapters utilize online application systems or recommendation portals. The recommender will typically receive an email with a link to upload their letter directly. Students should ensure their recommender has a valid email address and is aware of the portal's functionality.

Sealed Envelopes

In some cases, recommenders may be asked to print their letter, sign it, and seal it in an envelope. The envelope is then usually submitted by the recommender directly to the school's NHS advisor or the main school office, or sometimes given back to the student to submit. It is crucial that the envelope remains sealed to maintain the integrity of the recommendation.

Direct Submission to NHS Advisor

Occasionally, recommenders might be instructed to send their letter directly to the National Honor Society faculty advisor. This usually involves mailing a physical copy or emailing it as a PDF attachment. Students should confirm the advisor's contact information and preferred submission method.

Student Submission (Less Common and with Caution)

While less common for formal recommendations due to potential bias, some systems might allow students to submit the letter on behalf of their recommender. If this is the case, the student must ensure they handle the document with care and submit it exactly as instructed, without opening sealed envelopes if they are part of the process.

Frequently Asked Questions

What are the key qualities NHS looks for in a letter of recommendation?

NHS prioritizes letters that highlight a student's leadership, scholarship, service, and character. Specific examples demonstrating these traits are crucial, rather than generic praise.

Who is the best person to ask for a letter of recommendation for NHS?

The ideal recommender is someone who knows the student well in an academic or extracurricular capacity and can speak to their specific strengths in leadership, scholarship, service, and character. Teachers, club advisors, coaches, or mentors are excellent choices.

What information should I provide to my recommender?

To help your recommender write a strong letter, provide them with your resume, a list of your NHS-related activities, your academic transcript, and any specific requirements or deadlines for the NHS application.

How far in advance should I ask for a letter of recommendation?

It's best to ask for a letter of recommendation at least two to three weeks before the deadline. This gives your recommender ample time to write a thoughtful and comprehensive letter without feeling rushed.

What if my recommender can't think of specific examples?

Gently remind them of specific projects, leadership roles, or service activities you were involved in together. You can even offer to provide brief bullet points of key accomplishments that they might want to include, but let them phrase it in their own words.

Should I waive my right to view the letter of recommendation?

Yes, it is highly recommended to waive your right to view the letter. This signals to the admissions committee that you trust your recommender and that the letter will be more candid and objective.

What should I do after my recommender submits the letter?

Send a sincere thank-you note or email to your recommender. This is a professional courtesy and shows your appreciation for their time and support.

Can a family member write a letter of recommendation for NHS?

Generally, no. NHS applications typically require recommendations from individuals outside of your family who can provide an objective assessment of your character, leadership, scholarship, and service.

Chapter 1: Knowing Your Student: Assessing Character and Achievements

Understanding your student is paramount. Before even beginning to write, dedicate time to reviewing their academic record, extracurricular activities, and any other relevant information. This might involve:

Examining Transcripts: Go beyond just GPA. Analyze trends in performance, noting any significant improvements or challenges. Look for specific courses where the student excelled, demonstrating academic strength and interest.

Reviewing Extracurricular Involvement: Assess the depth of the student's involvement, noting leadership roles, commitment, and contributions. Focus on activities that demonstrate the NHS pillars of scholarship, leadership, service, and character. Did they hold a leadership position? Did they consistently volunteer their time? Did they show initiative and dedication?

Seeking Input from Other Teachers and Counselors: Collaborate with other educators who know the student well. Their perspectives can provide valuable insights and corroborate your own observations.

Considering Personal Interactions: Recall specific instances where the student demonstrated qualities aligned with the NHS values. Think about classroom discussions, projects, or interactions outside of the classroom.

Recent research on effective recommendation letters highlights the importance of providing specific examples. Vague statements like "a great student" or "a good leader" are insufficient. Instead, focus on providing concrete examples that illustrate these qualities. For instance, instead of saying "She is a strong leader," write "She spearheaded the school's fundraising campaign, increasing donations by 30% through her innovative strategies and effective team management."

Chapter 2: Structuring Your Letter for Maximum Impact: Content and Format

Your letter should follow a clear and logical structure. A typical format includes:

Introduction: Begin by identifying yourself, your relationship with the student, and the length of time you've known them. State your belief in their suitability for NHS membership.

Body Paragraphs (3-4): Each paragraph should focus on a specific aspect of the student's qualifications, aligning with the NHS pillars. Use specific examples and anecdotes to support your claims. Quantify achievements whenever possible.

Conclusion: Reiterate your strong recommendation, emphasizing the student's overall suitability for NHS and their potential for future contributions. Offer a closing statement conveying your confidence in their future success.

Format: Use a professional and formal tone. Avoid slang or informal language. Use a clean and easy-to-read font like Times New Roman or Arial, size 12. Double-space the text and maintain consistent margins. Your letter should be approximately one page in length.

Chapter 3: Showcasing Specific Examples: Using Anecdotes and Quantifiable Data

Avoid generalizations. Instead, use the STAR method (Situation, Task, Action, Result) to craft compelling anecdotes. For example:

Situation: "During our AP English Literature class..."

Task: "...the students were tasked with developing and presenting a persuasive argument..."

Action: "...[Student's Name] not only delivered a powerful presentation, but also effectively engaged the audience, prompting insightful questions and discussion."

Result: "...Their presentation received the highest grade in the class, showcasing their exceptional communication and critical thinking skills."

Quantify achievements whenever possible. Instead of "He volunteered frequently," write "He volunteered over 100 hours at the local animal shelter, demonstrating his commitment to community service." This adds weight and credibility to your assessment.

Chapter 4: Addressing the NHS Selection Criteria Directly

The NHS typically selects members based on four pillars: Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Character. Your letter should explicitly address each of these:

Scholarship: Highlight academic achievements, such as high GPA, awards, and participation in challenging courses.

Leadership: Showcase instances of leadership, including positions held in clubs or organizations, leadership in group projects, and mentoring others.

Service: Describe volunteer work, community involvement, and contributions to the school or community. Focus on the impact of their actions.

Character: Highlight qualities such as integrity, honesty, responsibility, and respect. Provide specific examples of situations where the student demonstrated these traits.

Chapter 5: Writing a Compelling Conclusion and Proofreading

The conclusion should summarize your key points and reiterate your strong recommendation. Avoid simply restating what you've already written. Instead, offer a forward-looking statement that emphasizes the student's potential for continued growth and contribution within NHS. End with a formal closing, such as "Sincerely" or "Respectfully."

Proofreading is critical. Errors in grammar, spelling, and punctuation can significantly detract from the impact of your letter. Have a colleague or friend review your work before submitting it.

Chapter 6: Beyond the Letter: Supporting Your Student's Application

Consider offering additional support to the student. This could include:

Providing additional materials: If appropriate, offer to provide additional letters of support, or other documentation that would support the student's application.

Answering questions from the selection committee: Be prepared to answer any questions the selection committee may have.

Your support beyond the letter demonstrates your commitment to your student's success.

FAQs

1. How long should a letter of recommendation for NHS be? Aim for approximately one page. Conciseness is key.
2. What if I haven't taught the student for a long time? Be honest about the extent of your knowledge, but still focus on specific examples if possible.
3. Should I focus on positive aspects only? While focusing on positives is crucial, you can address minor weaknesses in a constructive way, showcasing how the student overcame them.
4. What if I'm unsure if the student is a good fit for NHS? It's better to decline writing the recommendation than to write a lukewarm or unenthusiastic letter.
5. Can I use templates for writing the recommendation letter? Templates can be helpful for structure, but always personalize the letter to reflect the student's unique qualities.
6. How can I make my letter stand out? Use specific examples, quantify achievements, and address the NHS selection criteria directly.
7. When is the deadline for submitting recommendation letters? Check with your school's NHS chapter for specific deadlines.
8. What should I do if the student asks for a copy of the letter? Always ask the student if it is permissible for you to provide a copy of the letter. Follow your school's policies regarding the release of student information.
9. How can I ensure my letter is impactful and persuasive? Proofread meticulously, maintain a professional tone, and use specific examples to showcase the student's qualities.

As Nuri and Afra travel through a broken world, they must confront not only the pain of their own unspeakable loss but dangers that would overwhelm even the bravest souls. Above all, they must make the difficult journey back to each other, a path once so familiar yet rendered foreign by the heartache of displacement. Moving, intimate, and beautifully written, The Beekeeper of Aleppo is a book for our times: a novel that at once reminds us that the most peaceful and ordinary lives can be utterly upended in unimaginable ways and brings a journey in faraway lands close to home, never to be forgotten. Praise for The Beekeeper of Aleppo "This book dips below the deafening headlines, and tells a true story with subtlety and power."—Esther Freud, author of Mr. Mac and Me "This compelling tale had me gripped with its compassion, its sensual style, and its onward and lively urge for resolution.”—Daljit Nagra, author of British Museum “This novel speaks to so much that is happening in the world today. It’s intelligent, thoughtful, and relevant, but very importantly it is accessible. I’m recommending this book to everyone I care about.”—Benjamin Zephaniah, author of Refugee Boy letter of recommendation for national honor society: Cardinal Virtue J.R. Lesperance, 2020-05-05 A beloved schoolteacher, her gruesome death, and a series of cryptic symbols left behind by the killer are just the beginning... Police legacy Lara Nadeau never thought she would find herself anywhere but her beloved Boston. However, after the death of her father and one too many missteps on the job, she is transferred to Eastfall: a small, charming city near Salem. Wracked with grief and haunted by a hostage situation gone horribly wrong, Lara spirals into a toxic mire of anxiety, depression, and substance abuse. She hoped the slow pace of small town policing might be a calm retreat to help set her back on the straight and narrow. Unfortunately, not long after her arrival to idyllic Eastfall, a brutal, ritualistic murder of a beloved educator sends the community reeling. To make matters worse, the prime suspect is the police chief’s son, Police Sergeant Zachariah Braddock. Charming and handsome, Zach has a few demons of his own, but is he capable of such atrocities? Lara’s only wish is to return to Boston and prove she is not her past mistakes, but one death was only the beginning. A sequence of peculiar murders of local women, a house with a mind of its own, and the return of an old flame, threatens to derail her. If Lara can’t overcome her own personal demons to help find the killer in time, her chances of clearing her name and saving her own life, will be dead in the water.

letter of recommendation for national honor society: Prairie Breezes Theodore "Jim" Goering, 2020-04-14 Pretty Prairie, dating from the late 1880s and somewhat before the advent of settled agriculture, was linked to the larger world by its location on a rudimentary stage coach line which connected the pioneer towns of Wichita in the south central part of the state with Dodge City to the west. As historians tell it, the city's colorful name reflects a comment by a lady traveler from an east coast state on a western-bound stage coach. At a stop to rest the horses and give the travelers time to stretch their legs, the traveler stepped out of the coach, inhaled a deep breath of the fresh air, looked with wonder and amazement at the seemingly endless expanse of verdant prairie grass on low-lying hills, and remarked, Oh, my! What a pretty prairie! And so it began to be known as such! Today, with a population of about 680 inhabitants, Pretty Prairie faces challenges similar to those confronting many small towns in the American heartlandviz. the paucity of remunerative employment opportunities which encourages educated younger residents to pursue an odyssey (an extended, adventurous voyage) in search of greater economic opportunities and soul-fulfilling adventure! Jim's odyssey, as articulated in this narrative, is almost certainly only one of many undertaken by the youth of these communities. Notable personalities associated with Pretty Prairie include former Kansas Governor, Walter A. Huxman; nationally acclaimed artist of American wild life, Jack Unruh; iconic, long-term athletic coach at Pretty Prairie High School, George Norton; and Carl Alfalfa Switzer of the Little Rascals/Our Gang series. Author Jim and his loving wife of more than 60 years of marriage, Shirley, now live in retirement in North Newton, Kansas and remain occupied with educational, community and church activities. They are the parents of five children and grandparents of nine. Jim's remarkable career has come from humble roots on a farm near Pretty Prairie, Kansas, through halls of influence and power in Washington DC; Beijing, China; Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia; Guatemala City, Guatemala; Ulanbaatar, Mongolia; Pyongyang, North Korea and elsewhere, always driven by the consummate desire to honor the gentle exhortation of his father in Jim's youth to ...leave this world upon departure a better place than when you arrived! Foundational reference points along the way for Jim include: The Good Book, the Christian Bible, and the words of Proverbs 3: 5-6: Trust in the Lord with all you heart and lean not on your own understanding. In all your ways acknowledge Him, and He will make your paths straight; The profundity of Robert Frost's words in his 1916 epic poem, A Road Not Taken; Two roads diverged in a wood and I took the one less traveled by; And that has made all the difference! The hauntingly moving phrases in Paul Anka's song, My Way!, sung so well by Frank Sinatra: And now the end is near; and so, I face the final curtain. My friend, I'll say it clear; I'll state my case of which I'm certain! I've lived a life that's full; I've traveled each and every highway! But more, much more than this: I did it my way!

letter of recommendation for national honor society: Free Period Ali Terese, 2024-03-05 This middle-grade Moxie centering period equity is Are You There God? It's Me, Margaret for the next generation! Absolute fire. -- Book Riot Helen and Gracie are pranking their way through middle school when a stinky stunt lands them in the front office -- again. Because nothing else has curbed their chaos, the principal orders the best friends to do the unthinkable: care about something. So they join the school's Community Action Club with plans to do as little as humanly possible. But when Helen is caught unprepared by an early period and bleeds through her pants -- they were gold lame! -- the girls take over the club's campaign for maxi pads in bathrooms for all students who menstruate. In the name of period equity, the two friends use everything from over-the-top baked goods to glitter gluing for change. But nothing can prepare them for a clueless school board (ew), an annoying little sister (ugh), and crushes (oh my!). As Helen and Gracie find themselves closer to change and in deeper trouble than ever before, they must decide if they care enough to keep going . . . even if it costs them their friendship.

letter of recommendation for national honor society: Between the World and Me Ta-Nehisi Coates, 2015-07-14 #1 NEW YORK TIMES BESTSELLER • NATIONAL BOOK AWARD WINNER • NAMED ONE OF TIME'S TEN BEST NONFICTION BOOKS OF THE DECADE • PULITZER PRIZE FINALIST • NATIONAL BOOK CRITICS CIRCLE AWARD FINALIST • ONE OF OPRAH'S "BOOKS THAT HELP ME THROUGH" • NOW AN HBO ORIGINAL SPECIAL EVENT Hailed by Toni Morrison as "required reading," a bold and personal literary exploration of America's racial history by "the most important essayist in a generation and a writer who changed the national political conversation about race" (Rolling Stone) NAMED ONE OF THE MOST INFLUENTIAL BOOKS OF THE DECADE BY CNN • NAMED ONE OF PASTE'S BEST MEMOIRS OF THE DECADE • NAMED ONE OF THE TEN BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR BY The New York Times Book Review • O: The Oprah Magazine • The Washington Post • People • Entertainment Weekly • Vogue • Los Angeles Times • San Francisco Chronicle • Chicago Tribune • New York • Newsday • Library Journal • Publishers Weekly In a profound work that pivots from the biggest questions about American history and ideals to the most intimate concerns of a father for his son, Ta-Nehisi Coates offers a powerful new framework for understanding our nation's history and current crisis. Americans have built an empire on the idea of "race," a falsehood that damages us all but falls most heavily on the bodies of black women and men—bodies exploited through slavery and segregation, and, today, threatened, locked up, and murdered out of all proportion. What is it like to inhabit a black body and find a way to live within it? And how can we all honestly reckon with this fraught history and free ourselves from its burden? Between the World and Me is Ta-Nehisi Coates's attempt to answer these questions in a letter to his adolescent son. Coates shares with his son—and readers—the story of his awakening to the truth about his place in the world through a series of revelatory experiences, from Howard University to Civil War battlefields, from the South Side of Chicago to Paris, from his childhood home to the living rooms of mothers whose children's lives were taken as American plunder. Beautifully woven from personal narrative, reimagined history, and fresh, emotionally charged reportage, Between the World and Me clearly illuminates the past, bravely confronts our present, and offers a transcendent vision for a way forward.

letter of recommendation for national honor society: School, Family, and Community Partnerships Joyce L. Epstein, Mavis G. Sanders, Steven B. Sheldon, Beth S. Simon, Karen Clark Salinas, Natalie Rodriguez Jansorn, Frances L. Van Voorhis, Cecelia S. Martin, Brenda G. Thomas, Marsha D. Greenfeld, Darcy J. Hutchins, Kenyatta J. Williams, 2018-07-19 Strengthen programs of family and community engagement to promote equity and increase student success! When schools, families, and communities collaborate and share responsibility for students' education, more students succeed in school. Based on 30 years of research and fieldwork, the fourth edition of the bestseller School, Family, and Community Partnerships: Your Handbook for Action, presents tools and guidelines to help develop more effective and more equitable programs of family and community engagement. Written by a team of well-known experts, it provides a theory and framework of six types of involvement for action; up-to-date research on school, family, and community collaboration; and new materials for professional development and on-going technical assistance. Readers also will find: Examples of best practices on the six types of involvement from preschools, and elementary, middle, and high schools Checklists, templates, and evaluations to plan goal-linked partnership programs and assess progress CD-ROM with slides and notes for two presentations: A new awareness session to orient colleagues on the major components of a research-based partnership program, and a full One-Day Team Training Workshop to prepare school teams to develop their partnership programs. As a foundational text, this handbook demonstrates a proven approach to implement and sustain inclusive, goal-linked programs of partnership. It shows how a good partnership program is an essential component of good school organization and school improvement for student success. This book will help every district and all schools strengthen and continually improve their programs of family and community engagement.

letter of recommendation for national honor society: Black Scholars in White Space

Anthony B. Bradley, 2015-01-19 Never before in American history have we seen the number of African Americans teaching at Christian Colleges as we see today. Black Scholars in White Space highlights the recent research and scholarly contributions to various academic disciplines by some of America's history-making African American scholars working in Christian Higher Education. Many are the first African Americans or only African Americans teaching at their respective institutions. Moreover, never before have this many African American female scholars in Christian Higher Education had their research presented in a single, cross-disciplinary volume. The scholars in this book, spanning the humanities and social sciences, examine the issues in public policy, church/state relations, health care, women's issues in higher education, theological anthropology, affirmative action, and black history that need to be addressed in America as we move forward in the 21st century. For these reasons and more Black Scholars in White Space offers timely and historic contributions to the discourse about making the black community a place where men and women thrive and make contributions to the common good.

letter of recommendation for national honor society: Birth Settings in America National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Health and Medicine Division, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Assessing Health Outcomes by Birth Settings, 2020-05-01 The delivery of high quality and equitable care for both mothers and newborns is complex and requires efforts across many sectors. The United States spends more on childbirth than any other country in the world, yet outcomes are worse than other high-resource countries, and even worse for Black and Native American women. There are a variety of factors that influence childbirth, including social determinants such as income, educational levels, access to care, financing, transportation, structural racism and geographic variability in birth settings. It is important to reevaluate the United States' approach to maternal and newborn care through the lens of these factors across multiple disciplines. Birth Settings in America: Outcomes, Quality, Access, and Choice reviews and evaluates maternal and newborn care in the United States, the epidemiology of social and clinical risks in pregnancy and childbirth, birth settings research, and access to and choice of birth settings.

letter of recommendation for national honor society: Autism: How It's Made Ogi Ogas, 2023-09-09 Autism: How It's Made narrates the remarkable true story of an autistic boy who became obsessed with figuring out how autism works—and how to live a joyful and productive life with the dark gift. Ogi Ogas rejected the conventional academic and medical models of autism, which did not match the daily inner experience of autism. Dr. Ogas became a mathematical neuroscientist to pursue his own ideas about how autism changed the dynamics of thought in surprising ways—and to show how it's possible to guide and reshape one's autistic thoughts to experience insight, peace, and deeper connection with others. Autism: How It's Made is a fascinating fast-paced memoir that shows how autism can unlock a whole new universe of experience for those willing to embrace their dark gift. letter of recommendation for national honor society: Dear Committee Members Julie Schumacher, 2015-06-23 “Like Richard Russo’s Straight Man this book has a lot to say about the humanities in American colleges and universities.... Very funny and also moving.” —Tom Perrotta, New York Post A BEST BOOK OF THE YEAR: NPR and Boston Globe Finally a novel that puts the pissed back into epistolary. Jason Fitger is a beleaguered professor of creative writing and literature at Payne University, a small and not very distinguished liberal arts college in the midwest. His department is facing draconian cuts and squalid quarters, while one floor above them the Economics Department is getting lavishly remodeled offices. His once-promising writing career is in the doldrums, as is his romantic life, in part as the result of his unwise use of his private affairs for his novels. His star (he thinks) student can't catch a break with his brilliant (he thinks) work Accountant in a Bordello, based on Melville's Bartleby. In short, his life is a tale of woe, and the vehicle this droll and inventive novel uses to tell that tale is a series of hilarious letters of recommendation that Fitger is endlessly called upon by his students and colleagues to produce, each one of which is a small masterpiece of high dudgeon, low spirits, and passive-aggressive strategies. We recommend Dear Committee Members to you in the strongest possible terms. Don't miss Julie Schumacher's new novel, The English Experience, coming soon.

letter of recommendation for national honor society: Events in the Life of an Ordinary Man Richard R. Pariseau, 2014-12-09 Dick Pariseau reveals the excitement, adventures, and predicaments one can get into if one is afraid to miss anything, welcomes every opportunity, seeks excitement, and listens to ones poker buddies when they suggest new or unfamiliar areas to explore.

He earned a PhD at night school because he thought decision makers would more readily accept his analysis if it was authored by a doctor. Denied the opportunity to play basketball his most accomplished sport in college, he chose to play lacrosse and became a First Team All-American. Seeking an advantage over the competition at singles dances, he took dance lessons and ended up as a dance host and instructor aboard a cruise ship. Uncomfortable with the casual disrobing of the co-ed models at the university painting class, his poker buddies recommended that he get over it by spending time at a nudist camp. As an adventuresome traveler, he has sailed the Nile River and flown in a hot air balloon over the Valley of the Kings, gone hut-to-hut hiking in the Swiss Alps, and learned to throw a boomerang with the aboriginals in Cairns, Australia. Be entertained by the adventures and humorous predicaments of this ordinary man, and use it as a catalyst to document the adventures in your life.

letter of recommendation for national honor society: Confessions of a PhD D. Anthony Miles, 2023-07-24 About the Book Confessions of a PhD shares the stories of twelve authors and their struggles and successes of pursuing their doctorate degrees. Each doctoral graduate has their own struggle and personal situations to overcome. We see a domestic abuse survivor, whose husband threw out all her textbooks. She fought to reach her goal in obtaining a doctorate. A former drug dealer who turned his life around. A graduate who didn't care to study in high school die to their football dreams, and the injury that made them pursue another path. And another who was a former stripper. Each story has its own message, its own advice to provide to anyone pursuing a doctorate degree, especially for those who seek further advancement in the field of education. Their stories will bring laughter and heartbreak, share successes and failures, all with the affirmation that through hard work, perseverance, and dedication, anyone can achieve their PhD.
