Whether you are a student preparing your request or an educator tasked with writing one, this resource aims to equip you with the knowledge needed to navigate the process successfully.

Understanding the Significance of a National Honor Society Letter of Recommendation

The National Honor Society (NHS) is a prestigious organization that recognizes outstanding high school students for their achievements in scholarship, leadership, service, and character. A letter of recommendation is a vital component of the application process, offering a qualitative assessment of the applicant beyond their academic transcripts and extracurricular lists. This letter provides a recommender's personal perspective on the student's suitability for the rigorous demands and ethical standards upheld by the NHS. It allows for the articulation of specific examples that demonstrate the student's commitment to excellence and their potential to contribute positively to both the society and their community. Without a strong letter, even the most accomplished student might struggle to convey the depth of their character and leadership abilities.

Choosing the Right Recommender for Your National Honor Society Application

Selecting the appropriate individual to write your national honor society letter of recommendation is a strategic decision that can significantly impact your application's success. The recommender should possess an intimate understanding of your academic performance, extracurricular involvement, and personal character. Ideally, they should be someone who has witnessed your growth and contributions in a meaningful capacity. Proximity to your achievements in relevant areas like leadership or service is also a key factor. A recommender who can speak to specific instances of your dedication and impact will provide a much stronger endorsement than one offering a generic commendation.

Who Makes an Ideal Recommender?

Several types of individuals are well-suited to write a national honor society letter of recommendation. These often include:

- Teachers who have taught you in core academic subjects and can speak to your intellectual curiosity, work ethic, and classroom participation.
- Faculty advisors for clubs or organizations you are heavily involved in, especially those that align with NHS criteria like service or leadership.
- Coaches who can attest to your sportsmanship, teamwork, discipline, and leadership on the field or court.
- Mentors or supervisors from volunteer positions or part-time jobs who have observed your responsibility, initiative, and ability to work with others.
- School counselors or administrators who have a broad overview of your involvement and character within the school community.

When to Ask for a Letter of Recommendation

The timing of your request is as crucial as the selection of the recommender. It is advisable to ask for a national honor society letter of recommendation well in advance of the application deadline. This provides your recommender with ample time to thoughtfully craft a compelling letter and avoids any last-minute rush, which could compromise the quality. A good rule of thumb is to ask at least three to four weeks before the due date. This courtesy demonstrates respect for their time and allows them to fully commit to writing a strong recommendation for you.

What Information to Provide Your Recommender

To help your recommender write the most effective national honor society letter of recommendation, providing them with comprehensive information is essential. This will ensure they have all the necessary details to highlight your strengths and accomplishments accurately and persuasively. Think of it as giving them the building blocks for a powerful narrative about you.

Creating a "Brag Sheet" or Information Packet

A well-organized information packet, often referred to as a "brag sheet," can be incredibly helpful. This document should include:

- A current resume or list of your significant achievements, including academic awards, honors, and leadership roles.
- Details about your involvement in extracurricular activities, noting your specific contributions and responsibilities.
- A summary of your community service projects and their impact.
- Any specific examples or anecdotes that illustrate your character, leadership, or scholarship that you would like the recommender to consider mentioning.
- A clear statement of the application deadline and submission instructions for the letter of recommendation.
- A brief reminder of your relationship with the recommender (e.g., "You taught me in 10th-grade English and advised the Debate Club").

Clarifying NHS Criteria and Your Strengths

It is also beneficial to remind your recommender of the core pillars of the National Honor Society: scholarship, leadership, service, and character. You might want to explicitly connect your experiences to these criteria. For example, you could mention how your role as captain of the debate team demonstrates leadership, or how your volunteer work at the local animal shelter exemplifies service and character. Highlighting specific instances where you have demonstrated these qualities will give your recommender concrete material to work with, making their letter more impactful and tailored to the NHS requirements.

Key Qualities to Highlight in a National Honor Society Letter of Recommendation

When writing or requesting a national honor society letter of recommendation, focusing on specific qualities that align with the NHS mission is crucial. These qualities demonstrate that the applicant is not just academically proficient but also a well-rounded individual with strong ethical principles and the potential to be a positive influence.

Scholarship

This refers to academic achievement, intellectual curiosity, and a genuine love of learning. The recommender should speak to the student's academic performance, not just grades, but also their ability to engage with complex material, ask insightful questions, and demonstrate a strong work ethic. Specific examples of challenging projects completed, intellectual curiosity displayed in class, or a consistent effort to improve academically are invaluable. A recommender might note a student's ability to grasp difficult concepts quickly or their dedication to mastering new subjects.

Leadership

Leadership is about influencing others positively and taking initiative. This quality goes beyond holding a title; it involves demonstrating responsibility, motivating peers, and contributing to the success of a group. A recommender should provide examples of when the student has led projects, mentored others, or taken charge in challenging situations. This could include leading a team project, organizing an event, or stepping up to solve a problem within a club or organization. Demonstrating the ability to guide and inspire others is key.

Service

Service to the school and community is a fundamental aspect of the NHS. The letter should highlight the student's commitment to making a difference. This includes not only the quantity of service hours but also the quality and impact of their contributions. Recommenders should provide specific examples of projects undertaken, the student's role in them, and the positive outcomes achieved. Showing genuine compassion and a desire to help others is more important than simply fulfilling requirements. Details about initiatives the student started or particularly impactful volunteer experiences are highly valued.

Character

Character encompasses integrity, honesty, responsibility, respect, and a strong moral compass. This is often the most subjective but arguably one of the most important qualities. The recommender should speak to the student's ethical behavior, their ability to handle adversity with grace, and their positive interactions with peers and faculty. Anecdotes that illustrate honesty in difficult situations, reliability, empathy, or a commitment to doing the right thing, even when difficult, will significantly strengthen the letter. The recommender's personal endorsement of the student's integrity is paramount.

Crafting an Effective National Honor Society Letter of Recommendation

Writing a strong national honor society letter of recommendation requires more than just a generic endorsement. It involves a thoughtful and detailed articulation of the student's strengths, backed by specific examples that directly relate to the NHS criteria. The goal is to present a compelling case for the applicant's membership.

Structure of a Compelling Recommendation Letter

A well-structured letter typically includes the following components:

- Introduction: Clearly state your relationship with the student, how long you have known them, and in what capacity. Briefly introduce your endorsement of their application for the National Honor Society.
- Body Paragraphs: Dedicate separate paragraphs to discuss each of the NHS pillars (scholarship, leadership, service, character). Use concrete examples and anecdotes to illustrate the student's achievements and qualities in each area. Quantify achievements where possible (e.g., "increased membership by 20%," "raised $500 for charity").
- Specific Examples: This is where the letter truly shines. Instead of saying "She is a good leader," say "As captain of the soccer team, Sarah implemented a new training regimen that improved team performance by 15% and fostered a more collaborative team spirit."
- Comparison (Optional but Recommended): Briefly comparing the student to their peers can be effective. Phrases like "one of the most dedicated students I have taught" or "among the top 5% of leaders I have mentored" can add weight.
- Conclusion: Reiterate your strong recommendation and express your confidence in the student's ability to contribute positively to the National Honor Society.
- Professional Closing: Include your signature, printed name, title, and contact information.

Common Pitfalls to Avoid

Several common mistakes can weaken a national honor society letter of recommendation. Being aware of these can help ensure the letter is as impactful as possible.

- Generic Language: Avoid vague statements that could apply to any student. Personalize the letter with specific details.
- Focusing Solely on Academics: While scholarship is important, remember to address leadership, service, and character as well.
- Lack of Specific Examples: General praise is less convincing than documented achievements.
- Negative or Lukewarm Endorsement: If you cannot write a strong, positive letter, it is better to decline the request politely. A lukewarm letter can be detrimental.
- Typographical Errors or Grammatical Mistakes: Proofread meticulously. Errors can reflect poorly on the recommender's attention to detail and, by extension, the applicant.
- Exceeding Word Limits: Adhere strictly to any specified word count or length guidelines.

The Application Process and the Role of the Letter

The national honor society letter of recommendation plays a pivotal role in the selection process, acting as a crucial supplement to the applicant's self-presented qualifications. While academic records and activity lists provide objective data, the letter offers a subjective yet informed perspective from an individual who has observed the student's growth and contributions firsthand. Admissions committees often weigh these letters heavily, as they can reveal nuances of character, depth of commitment, and potential that might not be evident elsewhere in the application. A well-crafted letter can differentiate a strong candidate from an exceptional one, providing the personal touch that persuades the committee of the student's readiness for membership.

Frequently Asked Questions

What are the key qualities a recommender should highlight in an NHS letter of recommendation?

Recommenders should focus on a student's academic excellence (GPA, rigor of coursework), leadership abilities (demonstrated initiative, responsibility, influence on peers), service involvement (dedication, impact, commitment to helping others), character (integrity, maturity, dependability, ethical conduct), and genuine enthusiasm for the NHS mission. Specific examples are crucial to illustrate these qualities.

Who is the best person to ask for an NHS letter of recommendation?

The ideal recommender is someone who knows the student well in an academic or extracurricular capacity and can speak authoritatively about their qualifications. This could be a teacher in a core subject, a club advisor, a coach, or a supervisor for a significant service project. Someone who has witnessed the student's growth and contributions firsthand is preferred over someone who only knows them superficially.

How far in advance should I request an NHS letter of recommendation?

It's best to request a letter of recommendation at least 2-3 weeks in advance of the deadline. This gives the recommender ample time to write a thoughtful and thorough letter without feeling rushed. Providing this notice demonstrates respect for their time and allows them to produce their best work.

What information should I provide to my recommender for an NHS letter?

When requesting a letter, provide your recommender with your academic transcript, a resume or list of your significant achievements and activities (especially those related to NHS criteria), the specific requirements for the recommendation (e.g., specific questions to answer, word count), the deadline, and clear instructions on how to submit the letter. Reminding them of specific positive interactions or contributions you've had can also be helpful.

Can a family member or close friend write a letter of recommendation for NHS?

Generally, no. Letters of recommendation for NHS should come from individuals who can objectively assess your academic and character strengths in a formal or semi-formal setting, such as a teacher, advisor, or supervisor. Family members and close friends are typically considered too close to provide an unbiased evaluation.

What if my recommender is hesitant or unsure about writing a strong letter?

If a recommender expresses hesitation, it might be a sign they don't feel they know you well enough to write a strong, specific letter. In such cases, it's better to politely thank them and ask someone else. A lukewarm or generic letter can be detrimental. You can also try to jog their memory by providing specific examples of your work or contributions in their class or to their activity.

How can I ensure my recommender writes a compelling letter that highlights my strengths for NHS?

Be proactive! When asking, remind them of specific instances where you demonstrated leadership, service, scholarship, or character. Providing them with a 'brag sheet' or resume detailing your accomplishments relevant to NHS criteria can be incredibly helpful. Also, express your genuine enthusiasm for NHS and why you believe you are a good fit, allowing them to tailor their letter to your aspirations.

Additional Resources

Here are 9 book titles related to national honor society letter of recommendation, along with their descriptions:

1. The Art of the Personal Statement: Write Your Way to Your Dream School

This book delves into the nuances of crafting compelling personal essays, a skill directly transferable to writing effective letters of recommendation. It offers strategies for highlighting an individual's strengths, character, and potential, which are crucial elements for an NHS recommender. Readers will find guidance on identifying impactful anecdotes and articulating them persuasively.

2. Making Your Mark: Essays That Shine

While focused on student applications, this book provides valuable insights into what qualities and achievements admissions committees (and by extension, NHS committees) look for. It demonstrates how to showcase leadership, academic excellence, and community involvement through narrative. Understanding these desired attributes helps recommenders pinpoint them in their candidates.

3. The Recommendation Revolution: Securing the Best References for Your Future

This title directly addresses the importance of strong recommendations and offers advice on how to obtain them. For someone seeking a recommender, it helps them understand what makes a "good" letter. Conversely, it implicitly guides recommenders on what makes their own letters effective by showing them what recipients value.

4. Character Counts: Building a Strong Moral Compass

A strong letter of recommendation for the National Honor Society heavily emphasizes a student's character, integrity, and ethical behavior. This book explores the foundations of good character, providing recommenders with a framework to identify and articulate these crucial qualities in their

Unlocking NHS Membership: The Ultimate Guide to Letters of Recommendation

Introduction: Understanding the Importance of Letters of Recommendation

The National Honor Society (NHS) is a prestigious organization recognizing academic excellence, leadership, service, and character. While your GPA and extracurricular activities provide a snapshot of your accomplishments, letters of recommendation paint a more nuanced picture, offering personal insights into your abilities and potential. These letters are not mere formalities; they represent a critical component of your application, often carrying significant weight in the selection committee's decision-making process. A strong letter can significantly boost your chances of acceptance, while a weak one can hinder your application, regardless of your impressive credentials. This introduction emphasizes the critical role letters of recommendation play in the NHS application process, setting the stage for the detailed guidance provided in the following chapters. Understanding this importance is the first step towards securing a compelling recommendation.

Chapter 1: Identifying the Ideal Recommender: Choosing the Right Advocate

Choosing the right recommender is arguably the most crucial step. Your recommender should be someone who knows you well, can speak to your character and abilities convincingly, and can articulate your achievements specifically within the context of NHS values. Avoid simply selecting the teacher who gave you the highest grade. Instead, consider teachers, counselors, coaches, or mentors who have witnessed your:

Academic Excellence: This goes beyond just grades. Did you consistently strive for excellence, participate in challenging courses, or demonstrate exceptional intellectual curiosity? A teacher from a challenging course where you excelled would be ideal.

Leadership Qualities: Have you held leadership positions in clubs, teams, or organizations? A coach or advisor who observed your leadership skills in action can provide valuable insights.

Service to Others: Have you consistently volunteered your time and effort to benefit others? A community service coordinator or volunteer supervisor can attest to your commitment and impact.

Character: This encompasses qualities like integrity, responsibility, and respect. Anyone who has observed your ethical behavior and positive contributions to a community can speak to this aspect.

Remember, a strong personal connection is vital. The recommender should be able to provide specific examples to illustrate your qualities, avoiding vague generalities. This chapter details the criteria for selecting an ideal recommender, emphasizing the importance of a strong personal relationship and the ability to showcase specific qualities relevant to NHS criteria.

Chapter 2: Crafting the Perfect Request: Guiding Your Recommender with Clarity

Don't simply ask your recommender for a letter; guide them with a thoughtful request. Provide them with all the necessary information, including:

Application Deadline: Give your recommender ample time to write a thorough letter.

NHS Requirements: Share the specific criteria for NHS membership, emphasizing the four pillars of scholarship, leadership, service, and character.

Resume/CV: Offer a detailed resume or curriculum vitae highlighting your accomplishments and activities.

Personal Statement/Essay: If you've written a personal statement or essay for your application, share it to provide context and reinforce key points.

Specific Examples: Offer specific examples of your achievements and contributions that illustrate your qualifications for each pillar of the NHS.

Contact Information: Provide the recommender's contact information and any specific instructions for submission.

A well-structured request demonstrates your professionalism and provides the recommender with the tools they need to write a powerful and persuasive letter. This chapter guides you through creating a comprehensive request package, ensuring your recommender possesses all the necessary information to effectively advocate for your candidacy.

Chapter 3: Showcasing Your Strengths: Highlighting Key Achievements and Qualities

This chapter focuses on strategically presenting your accomplishments and qualities. Emphasize not only what you did, but how you did it and the impact it had. Quantify your achievements whenever possible. Instead of saying "I volunteered," say "I volunteered 100 hours at the local animal shelter, organizing fundraising events that raised $5,000." Highlight your leadership roles, demonstrating initiative, responsibility, and problem-solving skills. Show, don't just tell. Provide concrete examples of your commitment to service, your leadership capabilities, and your strong character. This structured approach ensures your strengths are accurately and effectively communicated to the selection committee.

Chapter 4: Tailoring Your Letter: Addressing Specific NHS Requirements

This chapter stresses the importance of aligning the recommendation with the specific requirements of the NHS chapter. Different chapters may have slightly varying criteria. Research your chapter's specific requirements and ensure your recommender highlights those aspects in their letter. For example, if your chapter emphasizes community service, ensure the letter clearly emphasizes your contributions in this area. This tailored approach increases the effectiveness of the recommendation by directly addressing the selection committee's priorities.

Chapter 5: Reviewing and Refining: Ensuring a Polished and Effective Letter

Before submitting your application, carefully review the letter of recommendation. Ensure it is well-written, free of grammatical errors, and effectively highlights your strengths and contributions. A polished letter demonstrates professionalism and attention to detail. This chapter emphasizes the importance of proofreading and refining the letter for maximum impact.

Chapter 6: Sample Letters & Templates: Examples for Inspiration and Guidance

This chapter provides sample letters and templates to serve as inspiration and guidance. These examples illustrate different writing styles and approaches, helping you understand what constitutes an effective recommendation. Analyzing these examples can inspire your own letter request and help you identify key elements for success.

Chapter 7: Beyond the Letter: Further Strengthening Your Application

This chapter expands beyond the letter itself, providing additional strategies to strengthen your overall application. It discusses the importance of a strong personal essay, a well-structured resume, and active participation in the application process.

Conclusion: Maximizing Your Chances of NHS Acceptance

This concluding section summarizes the key takeaways from the book, reiterating the importance of a compelling letter of recommendation and offering final advice for maximizing your chances of acceptance into the NHS.

FAQs

1. How many letters of recommendation do I need for NHS? This varies by chapter; check with your school's NHS advisor.
2. Should I choose teachers from my most challenging courses? While challenging courses demonstrate rigor, prioritize recommenders who know you well and can speak to your character.
3. What if my recommender doesn't know me well enough? Choose someone who can readily access information about your accomplishments.
4. How far in advance should I request a letter? At least 4-6 weeks before the deadline, to allow ample time for writing and any potential delays.
5. Can I help my recommender write the letter? You can provide them with information, but the letter should be written in their own voice.
6. What if my recommender declines? Have a backup recommender ready.

7. How long should the letter be? Aim for approximately one page, providing detailed but concise information.
8. What format should the letter be in? Typically a formal letter format, either typed or handwritten.
9. What if my letter isn't as strong as I hoped? Focus on improving other aspects of your application to compensate.

national honor society letter of recommendation: The Beekeeper of Aleppo Christy Lefteri, 2019-08-27 This unforgettable novel puts human faces on the Syrian war with the immigrant story of a beekeeper, his wife, and the triumph of spirit when the world becomes unrecognizable. "A beautifully crafted novel of international significance that has the capacity to have us open our eyes and see."—Heather Morris, author of The Tattooist of Auschwitz WINNER OF THE ASPEN WORDS LITERARY PRIZE • FINALIST FOR THE DAYTON LITERARY PEACE PRIZE • NAMED ONE OF THE BEST BOOKS OF THE YEAR BY REAL SIMPLE Nuri is a beekeeper and Afra, his wife, is an artist. Mornings, Nuri rises early to hear the call to prayer before driving to his hives in the countryside. On weekends, Afra sells her colorful landscape paintings at the open-air market. They live a simple life, rich in family and friends, in the hills of the beautiful Syrian city of Aleppo—until the unthinkable happens. When all they love is destroyed by war, Nuri knows they have no choice except to leave their home. But escaping Syria will be no easy task: Afra has lost her sight, leaving Nuri to navigate her grief as well as a perilous journey through Turkey and Greece toward an uncertain future in Britain. Nuri is sustained only by the knowledge that waiting for them is his cousin Mustafa, who has started an apiary in Yorkshire and is teaching fellow refugees beekeeping. As Nuri and Afra travel through a broken world, they must confront not only the pain of their own unspeakable loss but dangers that would overwhelm even the bravest souls. Above all, they must make the difficult journey back to each other, a path once so familiar yet rendered foreign by the heartache of displacement. Moving, intimate, and beautifully written, The Beekeeper of Aleppo is a book for our times: a novel that at once reminds us that the most peaceful and ordinary lives can be utterly upended in unimaginable ways and brings a journey in faraway lands close to home, never to be forgotten. Praise for The Beekeeper of Aleppo "This book dips below the deafening headlines, and tells a true story with subtlety and power."—Esther Freud, author of Mr. Mac and Me "This compelling tale had me gripped with its compassion, its sensual style, and its onward and lively urge for resolution.”—Daljit Nagra, author of British Museum “This novel speaks to so much that is happening in the world today. It’s intelligent, thoughtful, and relevant, but very importantly it is accessible. I’m recommending this book to everyone I care about.”—Benjamin Zephaniah, author of Refugee Boy national honor society letter of recommendation: Cardinal Virtue J.R. Lesperance, 2020-05-05 A beloved schoolteacher, her gruesome death, and a series of cryptic symbols left behind by the killer are just the beginning... Police legacy Lara Nadeau never thought she would find herself anywhere but her beloved Boston. However, after the death of her father and one too many missteps on the job, she is transferred to Eastfall: a small, charming city near Salem. Wracked with grief and haunted by a hostage situation gone horribly wrong, Lara spirals into a toxic mire of anxiety, depression, and substance abuse. She hoped the slow pace of small town policing might be a calm retreat to help set her back on the straight and narrow. Unfortunately, not long after her arrival to idyllic Eastfall, a brutal, ritualistic murder of a beloved educator sends the community reeling. To make matters worse, the prime suspect is the police chief’s son, Police Sergeant Zachariah Braddock. Charming and handsome, Zach has a few demons of his own, but is he capable of such atrocities? Lara’s only wish is to return to Boston and prove she is not her past mistakes, but one death was only the beginning. A sequence of peculiar murders of local women, a house with a mind of its own, and the return of an old flame, threatens to derail her. If Lara can’t overcome her own personal demons to help find the killer in time, her chances of clearing her name and saving her own life, will be dead in the water.

national honor society letter of recommendation: Down Came the Rain Jennifer Mathieu, 2023-09-26 From Jennifer Mathieu, the acclaimed author of Moxie - now a Netflix film - and Bad Girls Never Say Die, comes a bold novel about two young activists who find love and themselves as they tackle the threat of climate change. After Eliza's home in Houston is destroyed by Hurricane Harvey, she is forced to transfer to Southwest High School. Traumatized by the floods and anxious in her new surroundings, Eliza throws herself into environmental activism, even if it's against the wishes of her Big Oil dad. But when she meets Javi - a boy who has experienced climate-related trauma of his own - she's finally able to connect with someone over the devastating mental effects of ecological disaster. Filled with nuanced themes of mental health, classism, and eco-anxiety, Down Came the Rain is a riveting and moving tale of friendship, first love, and what it means to grow up in an ever-changing world.

national honor society letter of recommendation: Prairie Breezes Theodore "Jim" Goering, 2020-04-14 Pretty Prairie, dating from the late 1880s and somewhat before the advent of settled agriculture, was linked to the larger world by its location on a rudimentary stage coach line which connected the pioneer towns of Wichita in the south central part of the state with Dodge City to the west. As historians tell it, the city's colorful name reflects a comment by a lady traveler from an east coast state on a western-bound stage coach. At a stop to rest the horses and give the travelers time to stretch their legs, the traveler stepped out of the coach, inhaled a deep breath of the fresh air, looked with wonder and amazement at the seemingly endless expanse of verdant prairie grass on low-lying hills, and remarked, Oh, my! What a pretty prairie! And so it began to be known as such! Today, with a population of about 680 inhabitants, Pretty Prairie faces challenges similar to those confronting many small towns in the American heartland viz. the paucity of remunerative employment opportunities which encourages educated younger residents to pursue an odyssey (an extended, adventurous voyage) in search of greater economic opportunities and soul-fulfilling adventure! Jim's odyssey, as articulated in this narrative, is almost certainly only one of many undertaken by the youth of these communities. Notable personalities associated with Pretty Prairie include former Kansas Governor, Walter A. Huxman; nationally acclaimed artist of American wild life, Jack Unruh; iconic, long-term athletic coach at Pretty Prairie High School, George Norton; and Carl Alfalfa Switzer of the Little Rascals/Our Gang series. Author Jim and his loving wife of more than 60 years of marriage, Shirley, now live in retirement in North Newton, Kansas and remain occupied with educational, community and church activities. They are the parents of five children and grandparents of nine. Jim's remarkable career has come from humble roots on a farm near Pretty Prairie, Kansas, through halls of influence and power in Washington DC; Beijing, China; Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia; Guatemala City, Guatemala; Ulanbaatar, Mongolia; Pyongyang, North Korea and elsewhere, always driven by the consummate desire to honor the gentle exhortation of his father in Jim's youth to ...leave this world upon departure a better place than when you arrived! Foundational reference points along the way for Jim include: The Good Book, the Christian Bible, and the words of Proverbs 3: 5-6: Trust in the Lord with all you heart and lean not on your own understanding. In all your ways acknowledge Him, and He will make your paths straight; The profundity of Robert Frost's words in his 1916 epic poem, A Road Not Taken; Two roads diverged in a wood and I took the one less traveled by; And that has made all the difference! The hauntingly moving phrases in Paul Anka's song, My Way!, sung so well by Frank Sinatra: And now the end is near; and so, I face the final curtain. My friend, I'll say it clear; I'll state my case of which I'm certain! I've lived a life that's full; I've traveled each and every highway! But more, much more than this: I did it my way!

national honor society letter of recommendation: Black Scholars in White Space

Anthony B. Bradley, 2015-01-19 Never before in American history have we seen the number of African Americans teaching at Christian Colleges as we see today. Black Scholars in White Space highlights the recent research and scholarly contributions to various academic disciplines by some of America's history-making African American scholars working in Christian Higher Education. Many are the first African Americans or only African Americans teaching at their respective institutions. Moreover, never before have this many African American female scholars in Christian Higher Education had their research presented in a single, cross-disciplinary volume. The scholars in this book, spanning the humanities and social sciences, examine the issues in public policy, church/state relations, health care, women's issues in higher education, theological anthropology, affirmative action, and black history that need to be addressed in America as we move forward in the 21st century. For these reasons and more Black Scholars in White Space offers timely and historic contributions to the discourse about making the black community a place where men and women thrive and make contributions to the common good.

national honor society letter of recommendation: Free Period Ali Terese, 2024-03-05 This middle-grade Moxie centering period equity is Are You There God? It's Me, Margaret for the next generation! Absolute fire. -- Book Riot Helen and Gracie are pranking their way through middle school when a stinky stunt lands them in the front office -- again. Because nothing else has curbed their chaos, the principal orders the best friends to do the unthinkable: care about something. So they join the school's Community Action Club with plans to do as little as humanly possible. But when Helen is caught unprepared by an early period and bleeds through her pants -- they were gold lame! -- the girls take over the club's campaign for maxi pads in bathrooms for all students who menstruate. In the name of period equity, the two friends use everything from over-the-top baked goods to glitter gluing for change. But nothing can prepare them for a clueless school board (ew), an annoying little sister (ugh), and crushes (oh my!). As Helen and Gracie find themselves closer to change and in deeper trouble than ever before, they must decide if they care enough to keep going . . . even if it costs them their friendship.

national honor society letter of recommendation: College Essay Essentials Ethan Sawyer, 2016-07-01 Let the College Essay Guy take the stress out of writing your college admission essay. Packed with brainstorming activities, college personal statement samples and more, this book provides a clear, stress-free roadmap to writing your best admission essay. Writing a college admission essay doesn't have to be stressful. College counselor Ethan Sawyer (aka The College Essay Guy) will show you that there are only four (really, four!) types of college admission essays. national honor society letter of recommendation: Events in the Life of an Ordinary Man Richard R. Pariseau, 2014-12-09 Dick Pariseau reveals the excitement, adventures, and predicaments one can get into if one is afraid to miss anything, welcomes every opportunity, seeks excitement, and listens to ones poker buddies when they suggest new or unfamiliar areas to explore. He earned a PhD at night school because he thought decision makers would more readily accept his analysis if it was authored by a doctor. Denied the opportunity to play basketball his most accomplished sport in college, he chose to play lacrosse and became a First Team All-American. Seeking an advantage over the competition at singles dances, he took dance lessons and ended up as a dance host and instructor aboard a cruise ship. Uncomfortable with the casual disrobing of the co-ed models at the university painting class, his poker buddies recommended that he get over it by spending time at a nudist camp. As an adventuresome traveler, he has sailed the Nile River and flown in a hot air balloon over the Valley of the Kings, gone hut-to-hut hiking in the Swiss Alps, and learned to throw a boomerang with the aboriginals in Cairns, Australia. Be entertained by the adventures and humorous predicaments of this ordinary man, and use it as a catalyst to document the adventures in your life.

national honor society letter of recommendation: Large Gods for Small Children Dr. Ogi Ogas, 2023-08-30 Large Gods for Small Children narrates the extraordinary true story of a young man who inadvertently contacted intelligent extraterrestrials. Intex, he calls them. For more than three decades, intex dispensed mathematical revelations to Ogi Ogas, including remarkable insights into consciousness, time, death, and especially love. In order to understand the complex teachings of intex and share them with the public, Dr. Ogas became a mathematical neuroscientist and science book author. In Large Gods, Dr. Ogas opens up about his uncanny and thrilling experiences with portals, the maze of souls, and his lifelong quest to find and enter Rainbow Black. Large Gods reveals the operation of the cosmic cycle, the dynamic loop that drives a neverending dance of matter, Mind, and love in our reality. Americans have built an empire on the idea of "race," a falsehood that damages us all but falls most heavily on the bodies of black women and men—bodies exploited through slavery and segregation, and, today, threatened, locked up, and murdered out of all proportion. What is it like to inhabit a black body and find a way to live within it? And how can we all honestly reckon with this fraught history and free ourselves from its burden? Between the World and Me is Ta-Nehisi Coates's attempt to answer these questions in a letter to his adolescent son. Coates shares with his son—and readers—the story of his awakening to the truth about his place in the world through a series of revelatory experiences, from Howard University to Civil War battlefields, from the South Side of Chicago to Paris, from his childhood home to the living rooms of mothers whose children's lives were taken as American plunder. Beautifully woven from personal narrative, reimagined history, and fresh, emotionally charged reportage, Between the World and Me clearly illuminates the past, bravely confronts our present, and offers a transcendent vision for a way forward.

national honor society letter of recommendation: Finding What Works in Health Care Institute of Medicine, Board on Health Care Services, Committee on Standards for Systematic Reviews of Comparative Effectiveness Research, 2011-07-20 Healthcare decision makers in search of reliable information that compares health interventions increasingly turn to systematic reviews for the best summary of the evidence. Systematic reviews identify, select, assess, and synthesize the findings of similar but separate studies, and can help clarify what is known and not known about the potential benefits and harms of drugs, devices, and other healthcare services. Systematic reviews can be helpful for clinicians who want to integrate research findings into their daily practices, for patients to make well-informed choices about their own care, for professional medical societies and other organizations that develop clinical practice guidelines. Too often systematic reviews are of uncertain or poor quality. There are no universally accepted standards for developing systematic reviews leading to variability in how conflicts of interest and biases are handled, how evidence is appraised, and the overall scientific rigor of the process. In Finding What Works in Health Care the Institute of Medicine (IOM) recommends 21 standards for developing high-quality systematic reviews of comparative effectiveness research. The standards address the entire systematic review process from the initial steps of formulating the topic and building the review team to producing a detailed final report that synthesizes what the evidence shows and where knowledge gaps remain. Finding What Works in Health Care also proposes a framework for improving the quality of the science underpinning systematic reviews. This book will serve as a vital resource for both sponsors and producers of systematic reviews of comparative effectiveness research.

national honor society letter of recommendation: Ask a Manager Alison Green, 2018-05-01 From the creator of the popular website Ask a Manager and New York's work-advice columnist comes a witty, practical guide to 200 difficult professional conversations—featuring all-new advice! There's a reason Alison Green has been called "the Dear Abby of the work world." Ten years as a workplace-advice columnist have taught her that people avoid awkward conversations in the office because they simply don't know what to say. Thankfully, Green does—and in this incredibly helpful book, she tackles the tough discussions you may need to have during your career. You'll learn what to say when • coworkers push their work on you—then take credit for it • you accidentally trash-talk someone in an email then hit "reply all" • you're being micromanaged—or not being managed at all • you catch a colleague in a lie • your boss seems unhappy with your work • your cubemate's loud speakerphone is making you homicidal • you got drunk at the holiday party Praise for Ask a Manager "A must-read for anyone who works . . . [Alison Green's] advice boils down to the idea that you should be professional (even when others are not) and that communicating in a straightforward manner with candor and kindness will get you far, no matter where you work."—Booklist (starred review) "The author's friendly, warm, no-nonsense writing is a pleasure to read, and her advice can be widely applied to relationships in all areas of readers' lives. Ideal for anyone new to the job market or new to management, or anyone hoping to improve their work experience."—Library Journal (starred review) "I am a huge fan of Alison Green's Ask a Manager column. This book is even better. It teaches us how to deal with many of the most vexing big and little problems in our workplaces—and to do so with grace, confidence, and a sense of humor."—Robert Sutton, Stanford professor and author of The No Asshole Rule and The Asshole Survival Guide "Ask a Manager is the ultimate playbook for navigating the traditional workforce in a diplomatic but firm way."—Erin Lowry, author of Broke Millennial: Stop Scraping By and Get Your Financial Life Together
